Comment received: This is an area which has a cultural and community legacy already under threat from the enormous amount of development and gentrification which has changed the nature of the houses, shops and local facilities already. i feel if this step was to be taken we are certainly going to loose the very quality of individual enterprise and independence that is intact what draws people to this area from all over the world. Portobello and the Westway market are global destinations for what they are - fewer and fewer people will come if it becomes yet another corporate shopping area. It is also an insult to the Westway community to whom this land was gifted when this land was forcibly purchased to build the west way in the first place. I could not be more opposed to this scheme. We have Westfield minutes away, to kill off the Portobello market is to be short sighted and foolish.
