How to Book Workshops

The LSCB training workshops are now accessed via our new Learning Zone website. The Learning Centre site is no longer in use.

Local authority employees: please select the Learning Zone via IBC.

Please note Hammersmith and Fulham and some Westminster employees may not currently be able to see any LSCB workshops, if you cannot see the workshops, please email lscb@rbkc.gov.uk to book on to a workshop. We are sorry for the inconvenience this may cause and we are working to identify a solution.

Non-local authority employees (police, teachers, GPs etc): to register to use the new booking system, please email lscb@rbkc.gov.uk with the following information:

- full name
- role
- name and address of your organisation
- which workshop you would like to book (if known)

We will reply with your organisation’s registration details and full instructions on how to book. We aim to respond to these requests within 5 working days.

If you have already created an account, please log in at https://learningzone.rbkc.gov.uk/tri-borough

For help booking workshops, please see the How To Book guide on the LSCB Website

If you are having a problem with your learning zone account, please email lscb@rbkc.gov.uk
IMPORTANT UPDATES

County Lines

You may have come across the term County Lines and are curious about what it means.

‘County Lines’ is a term used when gangs and organised crime networks exploit children to sell or move drugs. Often these children are made to travel across counties, and they use dedicated mobile phone ‘lines’ to supply drugs.

It is part of a wider problem of Child Criminal Exploitation (CCE) which has a large overlap with Child Sexual Exploitation (CSE). Sometimes children are exploited to move money or weapons or other children. It does not always include drugs being moved around.

Here is a video which explains a bit more: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=3ILaguFXHr4&feature=youtu.be

Some of the LSCB workshops include information about County Lines and Child Criminal Exploitation including;

- Multi-Agency Safeguarding and Child Protection
- Modern Slavery
- Contextual Safeguarding

Online Safety resources

Keeping children safer online is a growing concern for parents and practitioners.

There are some useful resources on the LSCB website https://www.rbkc.gov.uk/lscb/information-parents-carers-and-public/online-safety

This includes this flyer, which can be printed or emailed to parents and carers. https://www.rbkc.gov.uk/lscb/sites/default/files/atoms/files/Keeping%20Children%20Safe%20Online.pdf
There is also a very useful website for parents to help support them to navigate the online world of pornography with their children;

https://parents.culturereframed.org/about-us/

Culture Reframed responds to the pornography crisis by providing education and support to promote healthy child and youth development, relationships, and sexuality. Their research-driven programs will teach parents and those in the helping and healthcare professions how to recognize and respond to the role pornography can play in sexual violence, unhealthy relationships, internet and sex addictions, negative self-image, sexual dysfunction, depression, sexually transmitted infections, injuries, and other health problems. They aim to empower participants to create positive and lasting change in families and communities harmed by the sexually abusive and hypersexualized media that marks the digital age.
Welcome to the Young Gamers & Gamblers Education Trust (known as YGAM). We are a UK-registered charity with a social purpose to ‘inform, educate and safeguard young people against problematic gambling & social gaming’.

Become a YGAM approved practitioner

Do you work with young people or adults under 25 years and support them with Personal, Social and Health Education (PSHE) in your school, college, community centre or university?

It is likely you deliver workshops around safe sex, responsible drinking and mental health, but do you deliver anything around the potential risks associated with problem gambling or social gaming?

Working with the PSHE Association and Ofqual approved awarding body ASDAN, we have developed the UK’s first accredited, gambling-related harm training course and quality-assured resources. Our course and resources have been written for professionals and volunteers who support young people and adults up to the age of 25 years. To become an approved YGAM practitioner, gain complimentary access to our accredited resources and receive our Approved Trainer certificate you are invited to attend our one-day structured training course.

Ticket prices are: FREE

View All Upcoming Workshops and Make A Booking

Our one-day training course will help you achieve the following aims:

- Understand Youth Gambling and Gaming in the UK
- Understand the YGAM curriculum
- Understand baseline testing & measuring progression
- Review YGAM resources / create specific lesson plan for your educational establishment
- Learn practical tips on delivering the YGAM programme as part of PSHE in the curriculum
Children and young people are growing up in a world with an ever-growing focus on all things digital, which offers a whole host of exciting possibilities. And with the online world changing all the time, so does the way children and young people interact with it.

If you're working with children and young people it's essential you understand the potential risks and issues children may face online to better protect them in your professional role and to help young people thrive online.

At this year's two-day conference, you'll hear sector leaders share their knowledge, expertise and solutions to protect children online including topics on young people and digital relationships, the 'internet of things', gaming and the dark web.
