Tri-borough Head of Community Commissioning

Job Outline

Main Purpose of Job

- Find out what health and well-being outcomes communities and individuals want to achieve for themselves now and in the future.
- Analyse individual needs assessment and population data to determine what services we will need to commission or provide to meet needs and help people achieve those outcomes.
- Develop the specifications for the services needed so that we can procure them or so that people can access them directly, or a combination of both.
- Create the conditions that will stimulate a market of independent and voluntary sector providers so that people have real choice between a range of high quality options.
- Recognise that many health and social care needs and the issues of “well being” and “quality of life” are complex and are influenced by many factors.
- Take advantage of joint commissioning opportunities, strategic partnerships and other “working together” arrangements to enable the Council to lead or be part of far more sophisticated responses to these issues.
- Ensure there are systematic and transparent processes underpinning all of the above.
- Make sure people who use services and other stakeholders have real influence on all the above.
- Achieve excellence in strategic commissioning:
  - In an increasingly challenging financial environment.
  - In response to a changing regulatory and performance inspection framework.
  - Whilst not ignoring more immediate challenges in service delivery.
