Suggestions
- Council accommodation
- Council assisted accommodation
- Home-in-need
- Reasonable housing
- FAIR DEAL HOUSING...FAIR RENT HOUSING...

How about the well understood terms like 'social housing' or 'council housing'? Fair, public and community are as meaningless as 'affordable' in the context of what people can afford and the terms and conditions associated with tenancies.

Definition of 'affordable'

Affordable housing should be as in public sector workers and other residents on an average income, being able to afford to buy.

Housing that can be purchased like normal people used to purchase them 40 years ago, i.e. with 2-5 times their salary, not stupidly expensive, no more than 5 times the median or average salary of the country.

Based on income, not market rates

Affordable should mean costing (by rent or mortgage) no more than 50% of net income of LOCAL residents EXCLUDING those who find the private sector affordable

Affordable housing needs to be something that someone on 20K a year can afford

Critique of AH in the borough

Community housing is fine, if it is genuinely open to, run by and affordable to all our local lower and average earners. If it's council housing with the same staff and with the same gatekeeping to even get on a waiting list, managed with an authoritarianism deficit approach, it's not community housing and should be called Local Authority Housing.

We also need RBKC decision makers to get training in Community Led Housing then commission us several locals who've already taken this training, to work with councillors and officers to develop some Community Land Trusts. There's a ton of willingness and expertise out here in the community that could be used for this.
Potential Influenced Decisions

- The community's vote has a clear winner, their choice for a new name for affordable housing across the borough is 'RBKC Community Housing'.

- From the written feedback a proportion of the community are not too focused so much on the term, they instead want to know what AH means for the borough. This is a wider and complicated subject but clarification is needed, when communicating the new name, it would be good to point the community to the full outline in the relevant document.

- The community suggested a number of their own thoughts, but there was no clear winner from these. It may be a good idea, if time allows, to canvas opinion on any of these options against 'RBKC Community Housing'
  - E.g. Housing for all, Middle income housing, Low-rent housing, Affordable rent housing, Price-controlled housing, fair housing.
